TASTE

New Medford Rum is distilled from a combination of blackstrap molasses and sugarcane juice. By using an open-air fermentation the rum develops a light sweetness with hints of vanilla and butterscotch. The end result is an overproof rum that is both flavorful and smooth - sippable at 100 proof and ready to elevate any rum cocktail.

BACKGROUND

Too often, rum cocktails are made with spirits that are closer to vodka than to the rum. These classic cocktails were originally developed on full-flavored rums where distillers, not accountants, made the cuts. New Medford Rum is a return to those robust flavors. Designed to enhance, not hide behind citrus and sugar.

PROCESS

We begin with pure blackstrap molasses and evaporated sugar cane juice. The key is keeping the mash below a boil. Then we cool and using a blend of traditional and non-traditional rum yeasts. After fermentation is complete, we send it through our all-copper, small-batch stills. The bulk of the spirit is distilled twice. With the third distillation (aka the Queen's Share) blended back in. The resulting spirit is slowly proofed down to hold on to all of its delicious flavors created from fermentation.
